

One Out of Five: Disability History and Pride Research Project

We're excited to be sharing the One Out of Five: Disability History and Pride Project (OO5) with you. All of the resources can be found at http://bit.ly/One_Out_of_Five.

This year we have the opportunity to gather teacher and student feedback through a research study that will be used to inform the production of future student voice videos and OO5 resources. Our study explores how teachers implement One Out of Five (OO5): Disability History and Pride learning resources, the benefits and challenges of the resources provided, and recommendations teachers and students may have for revisions and professional development.

Participation would include a PhD student, Sarah Arvey, from the University of Washington coming to meet, interview, and observe teachers that are using OO5 in their classrooms, as well as interview students about their experiences of OO5 and learning about disabilities in school.

If you believe there may be administrators or teachers in your school that may be open to participating in our research, please email Sarah directly at saarvey@uw.edu. Feel free to share the resources when asking about interest and participation. We would also be happy to come and present the materials. Thanks and looking forward to hearing from you soon!

To access all of the OO5 resources, visit:

<https://oeo.wa.gov/en/education-issues/one-out-five-disability-history-and-pride-project>.

- Six student voice videos (available with English or Spanish captions)
- Discussion guides based on the videos
- Book resource guide
- Five lesson plans with differentiated worksheets
 - Intro to Disability
 - Intersectionality
 - Disability History in the US
 - Disability History in WA
 - Allyship